DALLAS, the Metropolis of the Southwest, is little more than half a hundred years old. The results obtained and progress made by this young and cosmopolitan city in that time are truly astounding.

The growth from 42,638 people (U. S. Census) in 1900 to 167,000, the most conservative estimate at present, shows what a truly "Magic City" Dallas is, and this without any artificial stimulus whatever. Reliable statistics show that Dallas has been growing at the rate of fifteen families per day for the past two years.

Here, "Where Men are Looking Forward," you find a spirit of fellowship and co-operation that is found only where men are Young in Ideas, in a Young City full of "Progress, Prosperity and Promise."

DALLAS, the center of THE MAGIC CIRCLE, has within a radius of 100 miles, 38 per cent of all the people in the State of Texas.

Ten million acres of land under cultivation, which grows  $17\frac{3}{4}$  per cent of the cotton crop of the United States.

1,823,000 people.

17,600 rated business concerns.

686 National and State Banks.

1,198 prosperous cities and towns.

282 miles Interurban railways.

DALLAS, "The City of the Hour," has Commission form of government and is the center of oil development in the Southwest.

Largest inland cotton market on earth.

Home of the largest State Fair in the Union.

Largest and most progressive city in Texas.

Home of the Eleventh District Federal Reserve Bank.

Headquarters U. S. Railroad Administration.

First city in the United States in the manufacture of Harness, Saddlery and Cotton Gin Machinery.

Second in United States in the distribution of Farm Implements and Machinery.

Southwestern headquarters for over 350 foreign corporations.

Has nine trunk line railroads radiating in seventeen different directions, with more than a hundred passenger trains in and out of the Union Station daily.

Largest express business per capita in the United States.

AGRICULTURE

Dallas is the center of the Black Land Belt of Texas, pronounced by agronomists one of the most productive of soils. Land that, fifty years ago, might have been bought for five dollars per acre is now appraised at more than three hundred per acre.

In Dallas there are thirty-eight wholesale agricultural implement houses doing a business of $36,000,000 in 1918. The present year promises to break all records.

MANUFACTURING, JOBBING and DISTRIBUTING

Dallas makes 8.6 per cent of all the goods manufactured in Texas. It is the largest manufacturing center of Harness and Cotton Gin Machinery in the world. The source of power is a simple matter, as fuel is close at hand. The large oil and gas fields of the Southwest are very near and the Oklahoma coal fields are within easy access.

Wholesale business increased from forty-six millions to more than three hundred millions in the past fifteen years.

Dallas is the Jobbing and Distributing Center of a greater area than all the New England and Middle Atlantic states combined. It is headquarters of the southwestern branch of practically every important wholesale house in the United States. Dallas has 570 wholesalers and manufacturers, 350 of which are of national importance, and includes branches of two of the largest mail order houses in the world. More than 2,500 traveling salesmen make headquarters in Dallas.

PUBLIC UTILITIES and POSTAL FACILITIES

Dallas has abundant water supply in two reservoirs covering more than 2200 acres. Natural gas is easily obtainable for heating, lighting, cooking and manufacturing; and electricity lights the streets and buildings.

The city limits surround 23.9 square miles, in which there are more than 350 miles of streets, 158.56 miles of which are paved. 88.89 miles of this is permanent (class A) paving, and 78.87 miles is temporary (class B) paving.

Real estate values increased from $46,490,325 in 1906 to $146,570,575 in 1918.

Dallas has a larger telephone development per capita than any other city in the United States. It is fifth in telegraph business in the United States.

The Dallas postal receipts for 1918 were $1,849,146, or 27.8 per cent of the total receipts of the ten principal cities of Texas. Mail service into and out of Dallas is exceptionally good, having sixty-five daily dispatches of mail from and fifty-seven daily receipts of mail at the postoffice.

AMUSEMENTS

The Dallas theaters stage only the best of productions, affording a standard of entertainment equal to that in the large cities of the East. This includes the best of Metropolitan Grand Opera, "Big Time" vaudeville and a large number of first run motion pictures.
